Hospital Literature Index is compiled with the cooperation and assistance of the National Library of Medicine.

Introduction

The Hospital Literature Index is the primary guide to literature on hospital and other health care facility administration, including multi-institutional systems, health planning, and the administrative aspects of health care delivery.

The Index is prepared by staff of the American Hospital Association Resource Center.* The Index, which has been published continually by the Association since 1945, is issued quarterly, with the last quarterly integrated into an annual hardbound cumulation.

Since 1978, the American Hospital Association and the National Library of Medicine (NLM) have cooperated to produce the Index from NLM's bibliographic file, the Health Planning and Administration database. This joint venture, using the capabilities of NLM's Medical Literature Analysis and Retrieval System (MEDLARS®), has allowed for expanded journal coverage and resulted in additional citations. The AHA gratefully acknowledges the assistance of NLM's staff.

Coverage

The Hospital Literature Index covers the organization and administration, economics, laws and regulations, and policy and planning of health care delivery. Special emphasis is given to the theory of health care systems in general; health care in industrialized countries, primarily the United States; and provision of health care both inside and outside of health care facilities. Because of its comprehensive focus on health care administration issues, the Index does not include articles on clinical medicine and the clinical aspects of patient care.

The citations in the Hospital Literature Index cover the delivery of health care in the following types of facilities:

- Hospitals
- Freestanding facilities, for example, surgicenters and emergicenters

* The AHA Resource Center includes the Library of the American Hospital Association, Asa S. Bacon Memorial; the Center for Hospital and Healthcare Administration History; and the Hospital Literature Service.

- Health care centers of all types, for example, academic, community, and mental health
- Health maintenance organizations and other group practice facilities
- Homes for the aged
- Hospices
- Mobile health units
- Multi-institutional systems
- Nursing homes and skilled nursing facilities
- Rehabilitation centers
- University student inpatient facilities

All administrative aspects of the delivery of health care are included, with emphasis on the following:

- Organizational structure and management of health care facilities and their departments, including information systems and marketing
- Clinical equipment, physical plant and furnishings, and technology assessment
- Comprehensive health planning, including local, regional, and national health planning
- Education in health care facilities or education financed in part by such facilities, in-service education, patient education, and education of health facility administrators
- Financial management, economics, cost-effectiveness of operations, diversification, and joint ventures
- Health care coalitions
- Health facility design and construction
- Health insurance, prepaid group practice, preferred provider organizations, and managed care
- Legislation, liability, licensure, regulation, and accreditation
- Manpower and personnel management, including certification and licensure of professions
- Patient care services and the quality of patient care
- Quality assurance
- Reimbursement mechanisms, including prospective pricing and diagnostic related groups
- Risk management
- Utilization review, including professional review organizations

In addition to articles from health care administration journals, articles are also chosen from journals that are not health related. Articles considered appropriate in scope are indexed without regard to the quality of their preparation or the number of references they cite. Only English language publications are included.

The AHA Resource Center

Established in 1920 as the Hospital Library and Service Bureau, the AHA Resource Center today holds the nation's foremost collection of current and historical hospital and health services administration literature. By following its written collection development policy, the Resource Center has developed a health administration collection of over 50,000 volumes and 1,000 current periodical subscriptions.

The services provided by the AHA Resource Center include factual information and referral, information and data retrieval, and document delivery. Factual information and referral services are provided to AHA members and others with a need for information. The information and data retrieval service offers in-depth research assistance, data retrieval, and project support on a fee basis. The document delivery service makes the AHA Resource Center's collections available to both members and nonmembers of the Association on a differential fee basis. Requests are accepted by telephone, mail, and through selected electronic document order systems.

The Center for Hospital and Healthcare Administration History, jointly sponsored by the American Hospital Association Resource Center and the American College of Healthcare Executives, concentrates on the historical aspects of health services administration. The Center's collections include a historical collection of published materials of special historical value; the Hospital Administration Oral History Collection, Lewis E. Weeks series, featuring transcribed interviews with noted individuals; an archival collection of unpublished papers and memorabilia of significance to the field; and a collection of historical photographs.

The Hospital Literature Service provides products for the broad-based dissemination of information utilizing current technologies and drawing upon the strength of the AHA Resource Center's unique collections. The Health Planning and Administration database is an online bibliographic file containing more than 470,000 citations to literature about health care planning, organization, financing, management, manpower, and related subjects. The database is available online through BRS®, DIALOG®, and MEDLARS®. Other products currently available include Acronyms and Initialisms in Health Care Administration, Current Management Resources for Health Care Professionals, Hospital Administration Terminology, and Periodicals Holdings List of the American Hospital Association Resource Center. Ordering information on these publications is available from the AHA Resource Center.

The services and products of the AHA Resource Center were developed to help health care professionals locate specific health care information quickly and easily. Further information is available from the American Hospital Association Resource Center, 840 North Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, IL 60611; telephone 312/280-6263. Telephone number for telefacsimile requests is 312/280-5979.

Documents can be ordered electronically from the AHA Resource Center through the following systems:

Recent Acquisitions of the AHA Resource Center

Books, audiovisuals, theses, and new journals acquired by the AHA Resource Center are listed in this section. This list of publications is produced exclusively for and as a special service to Hospital Literature Index subscribers. It can help both individuals and organizations keep abreast of publications in health care delivery. Entries are grouped by the same headings used in the Subject Section of the Index. Entries appearing for the first time are preceded by a bullet (•). Other entries have already been listed in one of the first three 1989 quarterly issues. The bibliographic information for each citation appears in the following order: author, title, place of publication, publisher, date of publication, and physical description. For example:
